

Credos Privacy Policy

Purpose and authorization

1. The Credos mobile application (hereinafter referred to as Credos or Resource) is an information resource that allows you to find out public opinion on various issues with a wide range of topics, express your opinion on them and make it available to users who share the same views.
2. Credos provides access to the profiles of other Resource users who share the same views on some set of issues and can provide direct contact between such users via a chat inside the Resource, provided they agree to the chat.
3. Credos authorization is possible in one of the following ways: by phone number, by email address, through an existing Facebook or VK account, as well as through Apple registration.

Anonymity and confidentiality

1. With the exception of nickname, avatar, gender, country of registration, and language of communication, no other personal data of users is made available to other users in Credos.
2. Credos can show other users' data that is the result of users using the Resource itself, namely: the results of users' answers to questions and information about matches in the answers among users. In addition, in Credos, other users can access users' content that is realized by the functionality of the application: their comments on questions and chat entries (this is possible only between users who have agreed to chat with each other).
3. Credos may use third-party services such as Google Analytics, etc. to evaluate users' activity in Credos.
4. The user is responsible for the actions on his/her Credos account and is not authorized to grant the rights to use his/her account to third persons.

Dealing with users' content

1. Credos has the right to use users' content to support the functionality of the Resource and for the purposes of promoting the Resource, including any mass media.
2. Credos users will have access to other users' content and can share content from the Resource.
3. The decision by users to upload content to Credos does not put the Resource in a position different from that of the general public in relation to users' content. The users' content will not be subject to obligations or confidentiality on the part of Credos, and the Resource will not be responsible for any disclosure or use of the content provided by users.
4. If a user's access to Credos is suspended or terminated, then his/her content and other data can be stored and used in the Resource.
